THE WAR OVER.

Santiago Surrenders to the Insurgents.

Balmaceda's Forces at the Capital Declare for the Junta.

The Surrender Hastened by Outbreaks of Mob Violence.

The Houses of the President and Other Officials Burned - Balmaceda Escapes to His Warships.

By Telegram to The Times. NEW YORK, Aug. 31. - [By the Associated Press.] The Herald's cable advice under date of Valparaiso August 30 says: "The Chanaral regiment of the Congressional army took formal possession of Santiago tonight, and practically the last act in the bloody drama of revolution which has torn Chile to pieces for the past seven months is closed. The capital city was in the hands of a bloodthirsty mob last night, and while it was unable to satisfy its murderous instincts, it destroyed a vast amount of property."

THE MOB'S FURY BREAKS OUT. "As soon as the news reached Santiago yesterday of the overwhelming defeat of the government troops on the heights of Placilla, and the fall Valparaiso, and people knew that Balmaceda's power was gone, their enmity to his government broke forth. The cry was raised that the President should be killed, and the mob started for his house. It grew in numbers and fury as it went through the streets, and by the time it reached the executive mansion it was ripe for any bloody deed. Short shrift would have been allowed the President had he been caught. The bloodthirsty fury of the mob was balked. Then the desire for revenge found vent in the "APPLICATION OF THE TORCH. "Soon Balmaceda's house was a mass of flames. Before it had been destroyed the mob marched off to the house of Senor Goday, ex-Minister of the Interior and an ardent Balmacedaist, and set fire to his house. Then the residences of Balmaceda's mother, Gen. Barbosa, Senors McKenna and Eastman, the government newspaper offices and houses of several prominent officials were burned to the ground. "The city was panic-stricken, business was suspended and the people, outside the mob, kept close to their houses. The police, fire department and army were demoralized and made no attempt to maintain order. Balmaceda, when he heard of the fall of Valparaiso, sent for Gen. Baquenedo, commander of the government troops in Santiago, to meet him. A council of war was held at Valparaiso, at which President Balmaceda and leading Balmacedaans were present. The situation was thoroughly canvassed, and it was decided

"TO SURRENDER THE CAPITAL. Baquenedo was given charge of the city and authorized to arrange the terms of surrender. Word was sent to Gen. Canto that all troops in Santiago had declared adhesion to the Congressional party, and that Santiago was at his disposal. "The Chanaral regiment was ordered to proceed to Santiago to assist the government troops in keeping order and prepare barracks for 2000 additional troops. Accompanying the regiment was Senor A. L. Timirano, who, for the present, will act as Intendente for the capital.

"SANTIAGO IN A TERRIBLE STATE. "It is learned that the city of Santiago is in a terrible state. In addition to the destruction done by the mob, it is threatened with an irruption of all desperate characters in the surrounding country. Gen. Baquenedo has posted the Imperial regiment in a cordon about the city to prevent outlaws from entering the city, but it is almost a hopeless task. Gen. Canto and staff have left Valparaiso for Santiago with additional troops. A new chief of police of Santiago and a new railroad administrator have been appointed.

"BALMACEDA'S ESCAPE. "It is asserted on good authority that Balmaceda went by special train to Talcahuano yesterday. There he will make connection with the Condell and Imperial, and in one of these vessels make for Buenos Ayres or Montevideo. If this is so he will probably escape. "Comparative order has been restored in this city. Rioters caught in the work were summarily dealt with, "MANY BEING SHOT. "But rioting was not stopped until property worth $1,500,000 had been destroyed. Many tyrannical acts have been perpetrated here since January by government officials, and every warship in the bay has its quota of refugees. This gave rise to bitter feeling on the part of the Congressionalists particularly against Americans, for Admiral Brown has "GIVEN AN ASYLUM to many unpopular officials on board the San Francisco and Baltimore. "Admiral Brown, on the San Francisco, this afternoon had a long conference with the Junta leaders and the irritation against Americans has been subdued. The Junta is exceedingly anxious to secure recognition from the United States, and is now hopeful that it will be accorded them.

"Numerous government officials have been arrested, but such have been assured of a fair trial before proper authorities when quiet is restored. "Montt and Gen. Canto say there will be no measures taken toward the formation of a new government until all members of the Junta arrive here from Iquique. It is hardly probable an election will be held for some time, and in the meantime the Junta will be in control.

"HORRORS OF WAR. "The ambulance services have been simply disgraceful. Hundreds of wounded men were left on the battlefield to die who might have been saved if prompt measures of relief had been taken. The surgeons of the foreign warships have done most valuable service in caring for the wounded, and had it not been for their hard, effective work, the sufferings of the wounded soldiers would have been much greater. Especial credit is due to the medical staff of the United States cruisers San Francisco and Baltimore.

"BALMACEDA'S COIN SHIPMENTS. "It has been ascertained that 800,000 pesos in silver was shipped on the British sloop-of-war Espiegle. Semar, the British naval officer here, is making every effort to communicate with the captain of the Espiegle with a view to detaining the sloop if possible. It is supposed that Balmaceda intended to use the money to make payments on account of the new cruisers, Prosidente Errazuriz and Prosidente Pinto.

NEWS AT WASHINGTON. Admiral Brown's Report - Insurgents Receive Cheering Dispatches. WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. - [By the Associated Press.] A dispatch dated Valparaiso, August 29, has been received at the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Brown. It says: "The insurgents have possession of the city of Valparaiso. It was taken yesterday morning after a very sanguinary engagement. The government had the advantage of a good position, but had been defeated. The troops were disaffected. The insurgent ships were not present and the forts were not engaged. The Lynch with three second-class torpedo boats were captured. The foreign admirals demanded guarantees protecting the lives and property of foreign subjects. I have 100 men at the consulate. Many refugees are aboard. The provisional government is here."

The Colusa County Contest. SACRAMENTO, Aug. 30. - Tomorrow Gov. Markham will hear testimony and arguments in behalf of Colusa and Glenn counties relative to the constitutionality of the act organizing the county of Glenn. Atty.-Gen. Hart held the act constitutional, but Colusa people have appealed to the Governor to overrule the Attorney-General and allow them to take the case into court. If a trial is ordered it will last several months and probably 1000 witnesses will be called. The hearing also involves the question of fraud at the election for the division of the county of Colusa.

Fruit-growing That Pays. VACAVILLE, Aug. 30. - According to a statement published in the Enterprise yesterday, there has been shipped to eastern points 344 carloads of green fruit and 45 carloads of dried fruit, being largely in excess of the number shipped at the same time last year. Edward Fisher, cashier of the Bank of Vacaville, states that $265,000 has been paid to growers for fruit so far this season - a sum slightly less than that of last year at this time. In consequence of low prices very little dried fruit has changed hands and returns are therefore behind.

The Ball Field. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30. - The Sacramentos made three runs in the third inning today and the "Friars" could not overtake them. Score: San Francisco, 3; Sacramento, 7. In the afternoon the San Franciscos won a closely-contested game by a score of 6 to 5. SAN JOSE, Aug. 30. - The Oaklanders were defeated this afternoon in a game with San Jose by a score of 9 to 3, from beginning to end the home team outplayed them.

A Street-Car Collision. OAKLAND, Aug. 30. - An electric car ran into a horse-car at the crossing of Fourteenth and Grove streets tonight, badly injuring the driver and another man on the platform. Horse-cars have the right-of-way, and the driver expected the electric car to stop, but it did not do so. Both cars were filled with passengers. The crossing is a dangerous one, and there have been in past several narrow escapes from accidents there.

Safe Blown Open and Robbed. STOCKTON, Aug. 30. - The safe at Granelle's grocery store was blown open some time during the night. There were five employees sleeping in the rear of the building at the time of the burglary, but they did not hear the disturbances. The burglars made away with a gold watch valued at $125 and a diamond pin valued at $80 and a few dollars in change from the till.

Orange County School Election. ANAHEIM, Aug. 30. - The county high school was snowed under in yesterday's election. The country precincts rolled up solid majorities against the school. Returns from nineteen precincts give 321 majority again at the school. There are six small precincts to hear from. Had the campaign lasted two weeks longer the majority against the school would have been larger.

A Logger Killed. WESTPORT, Aug. 30. - Alexander C. Broadfoot was killed in a logging camp at Rockport yesterday by a log rolling over him and breaking his neck. He leaves four children in Allenford, Ont.

Eight of the Simms Gang Caught. DE SOTO (Miss.), Aug. 30. - Marshal Wilkes and deputies, who followed the notorious Bob Simms and his gang of illicit distillers and murderers from Alabama, early this morning captured eight of the gang near here. Simms himself evaded capture.

Ex-Congressman Scott Dying. ERIE (Pa.), Aug. 30. - William L. Scott is said to be rapidly sinking. His physicians have decided to take him to Newtort tomorrow.

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

The Empress of Austria Showing Symptoms of Insanity.

PARIS, Aug. 30. - [By Cable and Associated Press.] A dispatch to Estafette from Vienna says that the Austrian Empress shows symptoms of insanity. She is very eccentric, among other things wearing bizarre costumes in which to appear in public. Medical experts called by the Emperor pronounce the case a grave one, being associated with a hereditary malady.

BELGIAN FREE PORTS. PARIS, Aug. 30. - The Journal of the Chamber of Commerce states that the Belgian government will declare Antwerp and other Belgian ports free ports, aiming to make Belgium the warehouse of Europe. Many French and other European firms would not hesitate to transfer their business to Belgium in order to escape the burdens of the protective tariff.

FRANCE'S ADVICE TO SERBIA. PARIS, Aug. 30. - The Serbian government has communicated with M. Ribot, French Foreign Minister, regarding the Porte's diplomatic intervention between Bulgaria and Serbia, the Porte having protested against Serbia's marching troops, ostensibly for maneuvers, on the Bulgarian frontier. It is reported that Ribot advised Serbia to adopt a pacific attitude and refrain from offensive demonstrations against Bulgaria.

THE WORLD'S GRAIN YIELD. Large Shortages in Several European Countries. VIENNA, Aug. 30. - [By Cable and Associated Press.] The Hungarian government has issued an estimate of the world's grain harvest based upon consular reports from all parts of the world. The yield of wheat is estimated at from 725,000,000 to 736,000,000 hectolitres, and rye from 850,000,000 to 860,000,000 hectolitres, being from 44,000,000 to 50,000,000 hectolitres below the average for wheat, and from 90,000,000 to 100,000,000 hectolitres below the average for rye.

Austria requires to import from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 hectolitres of wheat and 6,000,000 hectolitres of rye; Germany 10,000,000 hectolitres of wheat and from 23,000,000 to 26,000,000 hectolitres of rye; and France 30,000,000 hectolitres of wheat.

Hungary has a surplus of 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 hectolitres of wheat but in rye there is a large deficiency. In Russia the wheat surplus amounts to 16,500,000 hectolitres and the rye deficit amounts to 40,000,000 to 45,000,000 hectolitres.

A SPENGLER'S LUCK. After Squandering Two Fortunes He Inherits More Wealth. NEW YORK, Aug. 30. - [By the Associated Press.] Constantine Ashargan, a young man who has been a millionaire twice and is now clerking for $10 a week, is in luck again. A number of years ago he inherited $1,000,000 upon the death of his father, a wealthy manufacturer of Athens, and proceeded to cut a large swath. By the time he was 25 years of age he was penniless. Shortly after, his mother died, leaving him another million. By diligent application he managed to squander this in eight years, when he came to this country, landing at San Francisco and making his way to New York, where he has since resided. Now an uncle in Alexandria has died and left him a third fortune. Constantine says he will take care of this one.

Settled with their Creditors. NEW YORK, Aug. 30. - A settlement of the affairs of John F. Plummer has been effected. His creditors and those of his brother, Albert T. Plummer, have fully discharged them from all claims, retaining, however, all claims against William S. Darling of the firm. The settlement is due, in part, to the belief of the creditors that Darling disposed of the greater part of the assets of the firm, and also in consequence of the concession of certain claims against the assigned estate.

The Venezuela Treaty. WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. - It is stated on good authority that the reported rejection by the government of Venezuela of the reciprocity treaty with the United States is incorrect. The treaty was not rejected, but the government sent it back asking that it be modified for the reason that the concession contemplated would decrease the national revenues 30 per cent. The Venezuelan government is willing to concede half of that.

An Excursion Car Wrecked. CHICAGO, Aug. 30. - This morning a coal train on the New York, Lake Erie and Western road collided with an excursion train on the Baltimore and Ohio at Lodi, O. The rear car of the excursion train, containing twenty-eight passengers, was thrown from the track, being totally demolished. Four people were painfully injured. The others escaped with a bad shaking up.

Blow-by-Axe Works Burned. NATRONA (Pa.), Aug. 30. - The bicarbonate department of the Pennsylvania Salt Company was destroyed by fire this morning. Loss $100,000.

MUELLER'S HOMESTEAD

Land Office Decision Settling a Boom Deal.

A MONROVIA SPECULATION

An Attempt to Deceive an Ignorant Man of His Property Stopped by the Authorities.

The recent decision of Receiver Bryant of this city in the case of George W. Dumbell vs. Charles Mueller, recommending the dismissal of the contest and allowing the defendant's homestead entry to stand, has been affirmed by Commissioner Thomas H. Carter of the General Land Office at Washington, D. C.

Charles Mueller, a German, made a homestead entry on July 24, 1884, for lots 4 and 9 of the S½ of the NE¼ of sec. 22, T. 1 N., R. 11 W., and after duly advertising, submitted commutation proof and was allowed to make cash entry for said tract on May 7, 1887.

On December 17, 1889, Dumbell initiated a contest against the entry, alleging in substance that Mueller, between the time of making his application to enter under the homestead law and the time of making proof and the issuance of the final certificate, covenanted and agreed with one J. M. Studebaker to sell and convey the land to him after he had procured the title thereto. That on September 18, 1889, Mueller did sell and convey said land to Studebaker for the sum of $15,500. That Mueller, therefore, swore falsely that no other person than himself and family had any interest in the land, and that he had not offered or agreed to sell or dispose of the same to any person whatever.

A trial was duly had on May 2, 1890, and Receiver Bryant rendered his separate decision as above stated. Register Seannens did not join in the decision, nor did he render one of his own, his reason for not doing so being that he was a party defendant in the action of J. M. Studebaker vs. H. H. Boyce et al., for the foreclosure of a contract of sale for the same lands involved in the contest. While the rules of practice require both Register and Receiver upon the determination of a contest to render a joint report and decision, the former was excused on account of his interest in the premises, and the decision was considered and treated as any other, notwithstanding it did not bear his signature.

Dumbell appealed therefrom on October 20, 1890, on the ground that it was contrary to the law and the evidence.

From the record it appears that in 1881 Mueller purchased a tract of land, said to contain about fifty-eight acres, from one W. A. Monroe, then a real-estate agent and speculator at Monrovia, who, on learning that Studebaker was desirous of purchasing property in California for a water house and speculative purposes, invited him out there and showed him several tracts of land. One of these was the property owned by Mueller, which Mueller said he had been trying to buy, but was unable to make a deal for it because of Mueller's inability to understand English. Monroe further informed Studebaker that if this property could be bought for $30,000 or even $40,000 it would be a good speculation. Wishing to investigate, Studebaker went to see Mueller, and made a proposition to purchase all the land the latter owned in that vicinity for $30,000, which proposition Mueller accepted. On March 15, 1887, an agreement to this effect was signed by both Mueller and his wife, who were paid $20,000, and Studebaker then delivered it to Monroe, whom, on May 10, he duly appointed as his attorney to act in his stead, and to sell all his real estate in Monrovia, Duarte and Arcadia, Mueller, however, not being sufficiently conversant with the English language understood that he was merely selling his railroad land, as he had the intention of disposing of his homestead claim. With the aid of a dictionary, however, he gathered that a mistake had been made, and sought Studebaker, who, after a few hours' talk, explained and Studebaker agreed to strike out from the contract everything affecting the homestead. Shortly afterward Mueller consulted an attorney about the matter and was told not to make any agreement to sell his homestead until after final entry.

Pursuant to their understanding, Mueller, on March 9, 1887, conveyed to Studebaker the railroad land, accepting $14,000 as payment in full therefor, and subsequently, after making proper record, Studebaker offered to sell his homestead claim, but never received a reply to his offer. In July following, Mueller entered into an agreement to sell said tract to one H. H. Boyce for $20,000; but when Monroe heard of this transaction he, as Studebaker's agent, immediately took possession and prevented both Mueller and Boyce from going upon the land. After demanding possession and being refused, Mueller came to Los Angeles and consulted a lawyer with a view of bringing a suit in ejectment, who advised him to let him have $3000 and settle the matter up between Boyce and Studebaker. Acting on this advice he procured a settlement with Boyce and on September 18, 1887, conveyed the tract by deed to Studebaker for $15,500. Studebaker subsequently sold the same to Boyce under a contract; but the only payment thereon was the first, $3000. When the others became payable default was made by him, whereupon suit was brought and judgment recovered for the balance due, which, however, was subsequently set aside, and the matter is still pending in the courts.

About January, 1889, Monroe suddenly disappeared from Monrovia and went to South America, considerably indebted to Studebaker and a number of others, but before leaving he turned over his real estate business to E. F. Spence. Ever since May 3, 1887, up to August 17, 1889, George W. Dumbell was acting as Monroe's confidential clerk and bookkeeper, and on going over his former employer's papers, after his departure, it dawned upon him that Mueller's entry to the land was fraudulent, so in order to make a living he conceived the idea of taking up some government land and initiating this contest.

As, however, the facts and circumstances fully justify the conclusion that Mueller acted in the best of faith and has given no reason for the cancelling of his entry, the contest was dismissed.

MADE A STRONG CASE.

Los Angeles Supervisors Before the State Board of Equalization.

The Los Angeles Supervisors made a good impression before the State Board of Equalization, as will be seen by the following Sacramento special to the San Francisco Examiner of Saturday:

Before the close of the session of the Board of Equalization last night, John T. Gaffey delivered a short address on behalf of the assessment-roll of the city of Los Angeles. Whether his effort made much of an impression upon the members of the board is not known, but when giving evidence under oath, the day before, in behalf of San Francisco, this gentleman made the singularly frank admission that the more he studied the facts, assessments and valuations of lands and personal property the less he knew about them.

But unfortunately for Los Angeles a strong delegation had the cause in hand and they presented a strong case. Supervisor E. A. Forrester, when the board met this morning made a very interesting speech showing the rise and fall of values in the southern citrus-growing country. The average assessed value of land in Los Angeles, he said, in 1879 was $5.19 per acre, while the present average assessed value, in spite of the fact that an immense acreage of wild and barren land had been placed in the assessment-roll since 1879, is $16 per acre. The total value of Los Angeles county for 1879 was $16,223,106, while a year later it reached $18,992,052, an increase of $2,768,946. In 1881 the value reached $20,308,791; in 1882 it was $20,916,385. But in 1883 an increase in the assessment occurred in the amount of $5,221,208, "but this voluntary increase," declared the supervisor, "was not deemed sufficient by the State Board of Equalization and the assessment was raised 10 per cent, making it $22,716,417, an increase over 1882 of $5,794,782. From that time the value showed a continual increase till 1887, when it jumped to $29,416,402.

"This result was caused by the bad judgment of the Assessor in following the wild boom and speculative values of the orange grove, upon being advised of the condition of affairs, cut the assessment roll down 10 per cent, leaving the assessment for that year at $26,824,508. But the following year found the assessor still suffering from boom fever, and as a result the roll was again increased by him to the amount of $21,498,783, and the State Board of Equalization again came to the relief of the plundered taxpayers and reduced the roll 10 per cent, leaving it at $19,444,061.

"Then commenced the day of reckoning. In 1889 the roll showed a decrease of $1,000,000, and the State Board, in its fairness, recognizing that the county was assessed out of proportion to the rest of the State, again reduced it 10 per cent.

"In 1890," continued the supervisor, in a sort of mournful tone, "the boom was completely 'busted,' and the paper towns that had been placed on the assessment roll by crazy speculators were swept entirely away and were returned to acreage, and then, as though the 'busted' boom were not enough, the red, white and black scale attacked the orange groves, uttering destroying thousands of acres, so that the trees had to be dug up for firewood.

"At the same time a mildew attacked our vines, and it looked as though the industry were entirely doomed. Through the indomitable perseverance of our people, however, both pests were finally destroyed, though not before immense damage had been done.

"All values throughout the county fell sympathetically and the roll decreased $13,000,000, but the State Board understood the decrease had not been greater.

"In 1890, after deducting the value of Orange county, which had been divided from us, the assessed value was $20,455,025. From that we have made an increase this year of over $3,500,000. The fact that the crisis is passed and that the county is being developed on safer and more conservative lines will be apparent in our increased assessment rolls in the future."

In concluding Supervisor Forrester said that a careful scrutiny of the figures he had used would show that Los Angeles was assessed more than its fair share, and was endeavoring to place on the roll the true cash value of all taxable property, and had never shirked bearing its full quota of the burdens of State taxation.

In reply to questions by members of the board, he said that the Assessor had not been guided by the famous cast-iron schedule prepared at the Los Angeles meeting in June last in his assessment of fruit trees. Young trees were assessed for what they were reasonably worth, three and four year old bearing stock at $50 per acre, and trees in full bearing at $100 per acre. He denied the charge that orange trees in Los Angeles county were not assessed till they were in bearing.

One of the features of the case presented by Los Angeles was the studied determination to draw no comparisons with other counties, and whenever an allusion was made to San Bernardino, Ventura, San Diego, the delegates refused absolutely to discuss it.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA CLIMATE AND THE RACE-HORSE.

A New Athletic Club Which will Make a Specialty of Pugilism—Preparing for the Quail Season.

That Southern California is to become the home of the blooded horse in the near future there is not the slightest doubt, and that horsemen will come here from all sections to breed fine horses is beyond dispute. This climate could not have been improved had it been created for the horse, and breeders are having their eyes opened to this fact all over the country; that extreme heat and cold affect horses just the same as men, as has been illustrated this summer. On this subject an eastern paper says:

"While the torrid wave touched Chicago vigorously in the last days of last week and the opening days of this, it did not get down to real business until it struck New York. Horses are like men in many respects, and excessive heat affects them in much the same way. Many of the poor equine slaves of the Gotham racecourse before the blighting and blasting breath of the hot wave that rolled across the continent, gathered in intensity and malignity as it approached the Atlantic Coast, where, reinforced by the humidity, it became a pest and deadly. Even the race-horses are said to have been affected, and one paper declares that the defeat of Merry Monarch at the Junior Turf on Tuesday, the 11th inst., was due to the effects of the heat. The dry Westchester Hills reflect the sun's rays on a calm, burning New York day in a manner that almost rivals Fort Yuma, and the scene where Uncle Sam's soldiers are roasted, down on the Mexican border."

Had the great races of the past few weeks been run in Southern California, the results would have been much greater, and it is to be hoped that the people of this, the garden spot of the world, will not be long in building good race-courses and taking steps to induce the owners of fine horses to come out here.

HORSE NOTES.

Spain shipped his stable to Rockford, Ill., last week. He went on there from Buffalo. The well-known western driver, Charles A. Smith, died at Olympia, Wash., last month.

It is said that Lord Clinton lost his race at Detroit from not being able to take hold of the bit, as he should, through a portion of his tongue being cut off.

John Green, the well-known trainer, is located at Portland, Or., where he has charge of a number of fast trotters that were in the stable of the late Charles A. Smith. The fastest one of the lot is Deloit, 2:23½. Challenger Chief, 2:30, is another good one that Green expects to go along well.

C. W. Williams has been asked to enter the Los Angeles race-track for $10,000, to stand at Stamboul and Palo Alto, the two to take place at San Francisco, and Alerton to have $5000 for expenses. He telegraphed his reply as follows: "I decline, as Alerton will not leave independence this season." Williams says that he will give Nelson, Stamboul or Palo Alto, each or all of them, $5000 for expenses to come to the October meeting at Independence, and fight against Alerton, and will give $10,000 to the winner.

ATHLETIC SPORTS.

A new athletic club has been organized in this city to be known as the Pastime Club. They have secured the old Los Angeles Athletic rooms in the Downey Block, and have secured a good membership.

They will devote themselves to fighting men as much as possible, and propose to do all in their power to make the mainly art of self-defense more popular in this city. They will not allow any brutal fights, but they will secure good fighters on every occasion, and as they have a membership they intend to put up good punts, they should have no trouble in securing some of the champion hard-bitters of the world.

They opened the club rooms the other night with a seven-round contest between two local boys. There was a good attendance and the boys were well pleased with the sport, notwithstanding the fact that the men were not evenly matched.

Trout fishing still continues good in the San Gabriel Canon, and every Saturday a band of local sportsmen make their way up there and enjoy themselves to their hearts' content.

The lacrosse club is in practice all the while, and one of their members has gone to San Francisco to try and arrange for a match game with the San Francisco club, which is one of the crack clubs of the United States.

Guns men are preparing for a high old time the 1st of October, when the quail law goes out. The crop of quail is larger this year than ever before, and the sport promises to be out of this world. The mountains are covered with birds and they are in fine condition.

The second-hand goods market is looking up. An old coat which belonged to Andrew Jackson was sold in Baltimore the other day for $3.50.

THE CHURCHES.

The Services at Christ's Episcopal Church.

AT THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Two Effective Sermons by the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Cantline—Sacred Concert at Simpson Tabernacle.

A great many people were late at church yesterday morning. At precisely 10:45, when the cable cars were loaded with church-goers, the cable broke and everybody had to get off and walk to their destination, or to the nearest horse-car line.

The little chapel at the corner of Pico and Flower streets, where the worshippers of Christ's Episcopal Church gather, contained a goodly congregation yesterday morning considering the warm weather, which somehow always seems to affect people's religious zeal.

Rev. T. W. Haskins preached an argumentative discourse, comparing the two texts, "He that is not with me is against me," and, "For he that is not against us is in our part." One passage is positive and exclusive, the other negative and inclusive. He went on to show by a close line of argument that considering the circumstances under which each statement was uttered, they were not contradictory in the least, though at first thought it might seem so. Charles W. Ward is the organist of this church.

Rev. Mr. Church assisted at the morning service and preached in the evening. Bishop Nicholls is expected to arrive in the next month to remain in Southern California till Christmas.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. T. C. Easton preached to a crowded house this morning and evening. He took his morning text from Esther IV, 14, the strong points of his powerful sermon being first, the importance of the individual; second, the value of an opportunity; and third, the power of intercession.

Dr. Easton returns to San Francisco this week, and Dr. J. B. Stewart, of San Francisco, will occupy the pulpit until the pastor, Dr. J. L. Russell, returns. Dr. Stewart is a very scholarly man, who has been a co-partner of Rev. Dr. McKim of the First Presbyterian Church at San Francisco.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

As usual Dr. Cantline preached to a full house both morning and evening, using the same text at each service, "Lo! I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

"This same Jesus was the central thought. He that has gone away and yet is with us now, today, yesterday and forever." The fact that it is the same Jesus who was clearly shown by numbers of incidents taken from the Bible as well as from personal experience in every-day life.

The following sermon was preached by Dr. Cantline at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, San Francisco, on Sunday, September 27, 1890. The text was, "Lo! I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." "This same Jesus was the central thought. He that has gone away and yet is with us now, today, yesterday and forever." The fact that it is the same Jesus who was clearly shown by numbers of incidents taken from the Bible as well as from personal experience in every-day life.

Several sermons were full of power and vision to the congregation. Two rose for prayer, three joined the church on probation and three by letter.

The song service at 7:30 o'clock was very interesting. The duet by Messrs. Chipman and Roca, the solos by Mrs. Enos and Miss Brown, and the organ voluntary by Mrs. Ogilvie deserve special mention.

SIMPSON AUDITORIUM.

On Sunday, September 27, Simpson Auditorium will be formally dedicated. It was opened in December, 1889, Bishop Fowler preaching the christening sermon, but has never been formally dedicated. The past year has been a very prosperous one. About one hundred and sixty new members have been added. Rev. W. A. Knighten, the efficient pastor, will, without doubt, be retained another year.

Last evening the choir of this church gave one of their popular sacred concerts under the direction of Miss Mollie Adella Brown. The soloists included the leader, Messrs. Dupuy, E. E. Nay, J. R. Logie and H. E. Hamilton. The music was all of a high order and was rendered in the artistic manner it always is under the leadership of Miss Brown, whose ability in this direction is as marked as her personal vocal attainments. The programme was interspersed with congregational singing, scripture reading, prayer and an address by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Knighten, in which he expressed his very sensible ideas on the subject of church music. He believes that when the great Creator established the law of harmony he didn't intend it should all be turned over to the devil. Many a soul has been sung into the kingdom of God who couldn't be preached into it. Westlake Park has the largest congregation of any church in the city at its Sunday-evening concerts. Music attracts the people, and why not consecrate it and convert those violins and brass bands. Judge Widney made a two-minute speech, heartily endorsing Mr. Knighten's views, and introducing the collectors to their baskets. The concert was well worth an admission fee and people responded liberally.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.

Next Friday evening members of the Loyal Temperance League will compete for the Demorest silver medal at Long-street Hall, 208 North Main street. Refreshments will be served and a pleasant programme of temperance recitations presented.

Y. M. C. A. Mr. Lew E. Darrow of Portland, Or., occupied the platform at the Y. M. C. A. Hall yesterday at 4 o'clock and delivered one of the most forcible talks of the season.

A DOG'S DEVOTION.

An incident that caused Strong Men to Weep.

As a rule railroad men are about as hard-hearted as the average army sawbones, and it takes something out of the ordinary run to bring tears to their eyes, but a whole crew on one of the Southern Pacific's local trains wept bitter tears early yesterday morning and a mangy, little black dog with a friend in the world, was at the bottom of their grief.

The Colton local had just passed a little station called Nabant, when the engineer saw a man lying full length on the track only a few hundred yards in front of his engine.

The usual danger signal was given, but the man did not move, and the train was brought to a standstill a few feet from him.

A glance at the body from close range showed the engineer that the poor fellow was stone dead. In a few minutes the conductor, engineer and trainmen were standing around the body.

Up to this time they had not observed the presence of a little black dog, but as soon as they approached within a couple of feet of his master he made a dash for the side of his master, and for a few seconds he fought with all his puny strength to keep the men away.

They were there for the purpose of examining the body, however, to see what could be done, and the little dog was rudely kicked to one side. He did not howl with pain as a dog generally does when kicked. He simply gathered himself up and quietly made his way between the men's legs until he reached his dead master's head, when he placed his ugly little face by the side of his master's, and after looking at the intruders a few seconds he began to whine, and big tears were noticed running down his nose. "I have often heard," said one of the witnesses, "that dogs have been known to shed tears, but I never believed it until today, and I have lots more respect for the dog family than I ever before had. When I looked around at my companions there was not a dry eye to be seen, and I must confess that I have not wept as I wept this morning since I was a youngster. For fully five minutes we stood there in the hot sun with our heads bared, for if you will believe me, every one of those rough men doffed their hats as soon as they saw tears in the dog's eyes, and if we did not really pray we came nearer to it than we have for years."

"The old man, who is probably a Mexican section hand, was removed from the track with more care than is generally displayed in such cases. His blankets were carefully spread and his remains were handled as gently as a mother would have done, and all on account of the tears in that little dog's eyes. As soon as the dog discovered that the men were quite friendly, and seemed to appreciate what we were doing for his master, but we could not induce him to leave his dead friend, and when the train pulled out he was still sitting at the head of the old man."

The old man was probably walking down the track during the night, when a train came along and ran over him. His whole length must have passed over his body, but strange as it may seem there were only a few bruises about the head, and not a single bone was broken. He had been dead several hours when found, for he was perfectly stiff.

The corner at San Bernardino was notified, and an inquest was probably held last evening. There was nothing about his person by which he could be identified.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

A MAN RUINED BY A LOTTERY TICKET.

Won a Big Prize, Went to Russia and Finally Landed in the Siberian Mines—Sievert's Story.

A few years ago a Russian named Sievert kept a restaurant in this city, and was quite well known. He was unfortunate, however, and became dissatisfied and went to Tucson, Ariz., where he opened a restaurant near the depot and succeeded in working up a good railroad business, as he made friends with all the boys and they never missed a chance to throw a dollar in his way.

He was getting rich, as he only had one bad habit, and that was buying Louisiana lottery tickets, and this habit, as the following pathetic story will prove, has plunged him into a living death.

Several months ago he and a friend named Steele bought several tickets together and one of the tickets drew $15,000. This sudden good luck seemed to turn Sievert's head, for as soon as he cashed his draft for $7500 he made up his mind to sell out and return to his old home in Russia.

The restaurant and all his household effects were sold at a sacrifice, and his family, consisting of a wife and five little children, were put in a boarding-house. He thought it would not do for them to keep house while he was absent, so he gave his money to a money lender to last her five or six months, and took his departure.

Instead of banking his money, which amounted to $12,000 or $15,000, and taking just enough to take him through, he pocketed the whole amount and started off on his trip.

As soon as he reached Russia he was arrested for deserting the army or something of that kind, and his money was confiscated. Whether he was given a hearing is not known, but he was hustled off to Siberia and put to hard work in the salt mines during the rest of his natural life. His family, who are very poor people, communicated this information to his wife, and the poor woman has been prostrated with grief ever since, and has lost all accounts it is doubtful if she will recover.

She is out of money and if it were not for the kind-hearted railroad men who were made acquainted with the facts in the case, she would have suffered before this.

Sievert must have known that he would get in trouble with his government as soon as he reached home, but his good luck evidently turned his head and he did not know what he was doing.

His partner in the lottery scheme also had had luck. He was given a draft for $7500 and he started off to cash it but lost it on his way, and started back over the ground he had just traveled, thinking he might find it. But in this he was mistaken, for some one else picked it up, and in twenty minutes poor Steele's money was in another fellow's pocket and he and several others have been chasing the bold thief ever since.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The Comrade, the official organ of the Fraternal Legion, in an article comparing the cost of insurance in the various orders, finds that the Maccabees is the cheapest from the ages of twenty-eight to forty-one inclusive. The figures are placed at $7.35 per $1,000, forty-five cents less than any other order.

The Ohio convention met at Lorain, July 8. Visiting bees were royally entertained. West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and District of Columbia, in all of which the order is in successful operation, represent ninety-three subordinate lodges with a membership of $,000.

$80,000,000 is now the aggregate amount of certificates in force in the entire order of the K. O. T. M., and over $1,000,000 paid out for life benefits.

Maccabees are forging to the fore. Great camp Michigan has 22,000, and now they are rallying in Connecticut.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

THE census of Alaska shows that the native population is rapidly decreasing.

THE Salvation Army has invaded Spokane Falls. If Spokane wants Greenslade as a counter irritant she can have him.

JERRY SIMPSON, the sockless statesman, threatens to come to California. Let's catch him and put socks on him! Sock it to him, so to speak.

EMPEROR WILLIAM went away from home and professed all sorts of peaceful intentions, but as soon as he got back, there was renewed activity in war preparations.

THE postponed competitive test of type-setting machines is to take place in Chicago early this fall. Many machines will be represented, including two from England.

THE Federated Trades says it does not want to fight the Federated Employers, and vice versa ditto. Very well, then, gentlemen, treat each other decently, and don't fight. Get a good ready and then go into the drebbund.

"SOME of our good friends who expect to pick harp strings in heaven object to balloon ascensions in Colton on Sunday," says the Chronicle of that place. The Chronicle man don't expect to pick in the great hereafter, and will take his ascensions in this life whenever he can get them.

AN exchange hopes that when Arizona applies to the next Congress for admission to the Union "she will not go whining around with bustles and petticoats tucked in her constitution, but will show that her men are willing to bear the brunt of her battles without dragging her women into the filth of politics."

IN view of Miss Frances Willard's declaration that the corset has filled more graves than the bottle, the Colton Chronicle wants to organize an association known as the M.C.T.U. (Men's Christian Temperance Union) to crush the corset. Bless all men are trying to do that same thing all over the country, but they generally prefer to act in committees of one, or a woman inside the corset.

WE have not yet heard from the San Diego authorities about that lot of coyote scalps which was shipped in from Magdalena, N. M., in charge of a justice of the peace of that place, some time ago, to claim the California bounty of $5 apiece. Indeed, the whole question seems to be hung up by the scalp-lock, pending a decision as to whether the law declaring the bounty is regular or not.

FREDERICK VANDERBILT'S yacht, built in England, has been seized by the customs authorities for the non-payment of $34,000 duty. The owner proposes to pay the duty under protest and appeal to the General Board of Appraisers, and then take the case to the courts, if necessary. The whole question of "free ships" will turn on this decision, with the probability very strongly against young Mr. Vanderbilt.

FLORIDA has a volcano, or thinks she has; and for a long time has made the most of the mystery in advertising the State. A column of supposed smoke has been seen to rise from the midst of a dense and hitherto impenetrable swamp-jungle. Now, Rev. T. W. Moore, a well-known Floridian and a writer of note, has undertaken an expedition to the depth of the jungle, having entered into a contract with the Century Publishing Company to find the volcano if possible and to make the locality the subject of an illustrated article for publication.

one desire to be an itinerant vagabond amounts simply to a mental disease, and will some day be so recognized and treated. Alienists will some day tell us about the tramp monomania; how it is engendered and how it may be cured.

AS TO BOOMS AND ASSESSMENTS.

The Stockton Mail says:

The showing of the citizens of Los Angeles before the State Board of Equalization conveys in itself a sad commentary upon the disastrous effects of a stranded boom. The fever having subsided, the southern country is feeling the depletion which a boom follows that species of sickness. It is a pity, too, for there is no fairer and better country beneath the sun than Southern California when water is turned upon its lands. But when it is gripped with the boom—well, it "bit off more than it could chew," and now it is paying the inevitable penalty of error. That locality will have a wonderful future, but it has first to undergo the slow torture of recovering from its illness.

Spare your pity, neighbor. Without prejudicing our statement before the State Board of Equalization, we can say that Los Angeles county recovered from the "stranded boom" a long time ago, and is in a very prosperous and growing condition now, as will be shown in a few days by the "Midsummer Harvest Number" of THE TIMES. The county has made more progress toward creating wealth during the past year than it made in any three years of boom. While the assessed values of Los Angeles county last year amounted to $67,121,610, this year the Assessor foots them up at $69,678,157. We think that a gain of $2,556,547 in one year, is enough, and we protest against any further increase of assessment by the State Board of Equalization; that is all.

If the up-country were not so insanely jealous of our prosperity here away, boom or no boom, it would not be so anxious to grasp at any straw which it thinks indicates calamity for Southern California.

"RUSSIAN TRAITS AND TERMS" is the title of a new book by E. B. Lanin, published at Boston. The oppressions and atrocities perpetrated by the Russian government are set forth in a way to make the civilized world tingle to its finger tips. Algernon Charles Swinburne contributes an ode which is printed in the body of the book, and itself contains some pretty strange language, as the following excerpt attests:

"God or man be swift; hope sickens with delay.
Send him howling down his father's way.
Fall, O, fire of heaven; and smite as fire
the hell of hell."
Halls where men's tortures, crowned and covered dwell.
These that crouch and shrink and shudder,
These that reign and dare not trust one troubling hand; whom terror curbs and drives—
These whose life reflects in fear their victim's These whose breath sheds poison worse than plagues; these whose reign is ruin, these whose word is death:
These whose hell turns heaven to hell, and day to night—
These, if God's hand smite not, how shall hearts be torn by horror withered as by fire,
Sour the strain of dark, ungodly desire;
Sour the strain of the darkness lightning, lit for death:

Down the lip, whose breath was doom laid
Down the way of Tears, while in vain deferred;
Bid the dead Alexander light the Third."

It is hardly necessary to remark that Mr. Lanin's book will not circulate publicly in Russia to any great extent; but it may help to stir up the indignation of humane people the world over, and some day when humanity is sufficiently awakened, it may prevail.

SIDE STROKES.

The promoter of San Diego's new iron plant has not yet selected a location, and citizens down there begin to think that his "squeeze blooms" are as slow as the blooming of the century plant.

A Brooklyn policeman saved $40,000 during his ten years' service on the force. It takes a very nice local policeman to save $40,000 a year out of a $1200 salary.

In consequence of the increased use of the bicycle in various parts of the country there is a perceptible falling off in the business of railways and heavy stables. There is also a perceptible falling off in the bicycle riding.

Already the eastern people are scanning themselves over the near approach of winter. The poetry of the fall golden rod will soon be swamped in snowy slush.

The roads running between Chicago and St. Paul have formed a "blind passenger pool." It is probable that the blind passengers are those who fail to see that St. Paul is bigger than Chicago.

A New York judge granted a divorce to a woman with 10 cents a month alimony. He should also have cautioned her not to spend the money extravagantly.

A Southern California paper speaks of a man who has a patch of water-melons 100 feet square. These are the largest melons reported thus far this season.

GENERAL NOTES.

A Massachusetts statesman has an idea. He thinks if prisoners of war are to be pensioned at $2 a day the fellows who wouldn't be made prisoners should be pensioned at a higher rate.

Edison has an idea that when electricity is so thoroughly utilized as to banish darkness from the earth mankind will quit sleeping. When he is busy mid his lights he can get along with fourteen hours' sleep a week.

Spurgeon is greatly emaciated by his terrible illness, while gout adds its agonies to the perils of his lunz and kidney troubles. England's great preacher lies in his bed room tortured with the idea that he has been silenced at a time of life when he had the most to say.

In a negative way the Louisville Times tells some truths that are more often thought than uttered: "If the Democratic National Convention next year were delegated to nominate the Republican candidate for President it would not be Blaine, and if the Republican National Convention were delegated to nominate the Democratic candidate it would not be Cleveland."

The latest idea in regard to regulating the liquor traffic is one embodied in a bill recently introduced in the Kansas City Common Council. It provides for the licensing of drinkers to drink liquor shall require a license, to vary in cost from $20 to $50, according to the expense of the liquor indulged in.

MADRID AT EVE.

A Band of American Women Abroad in Spain.

TOLEDO, THE MOORISH TOWN.

Cordova, of Pleasant Memory—A Typical Castilian Senora—Fair Seville, the Home of Murillo—The Alhambra.

(Following is a letter written by a Los Angeles lady to her college professor:—)

CHAMONIX (France), July 27, 1891.

My dear Mr. Esterly: In a letter which I wrote you from Madrid two weeks ago, I believe I said that after we had gone through Southern Spain I should write you something about that part of the country. I wonder if you are enough interested in "the land of the tomorrow" to hear a little more about it. It certainly possesses a charm peculiar to itself, for there is so much of ruin and desolation, so much of the past that one cannot help a feeling of sorrow for a people and a country who seem to have stopped short in their growth, and whose customs and manners are so far behind the present age.

In Madrid we found the people very much more curious about the "foreigners" than in any place we had been. Indeed, it was hardly possible for us to go out on the street without having a crowd to follow after. One morning as we were on our road to the city, we heard the newswoman calling (in Spanish, of course) "All about the Americans! Pictures of the American senoritas!" and I can assure you that never was a crowd so stared at as was ours that day.

Madrid itself is a charming city, and the only wonder is it should have been put in such an unlovely part of the country. In the early morning the city is full of busy, active life but at midday the streets are deserted, stores are many of them closed, and the whole town is asleep. About 4 o'clock, however, there are signs of renewed vigor, stores are opened, the finest goods are ready for display, men, women and children are all on the streets and at 6 o'clock there is no one left in the house. The city is awake, society is out in elegant coaches, the parks and thoroughfares are crowded. Then is the time to see Madrid. We drove down to the Prado, the most beautiful street in the city, and truly it seemed as if the citizens were all out on dress parade.

The really interesting thing to see in Madrid is the galle y, here are, our guide-book says, the finest works of art in Euro e. It contains between two and three thousand paintings by such artists as Velasquez, Rubens, Ribera, Murillo and Raphael; but I was particularly interested in Murillo's forty-six of whose paintings are hung here. Such delicacy of touch, purity of thought and beauty of coloring are to be found in no other pictures. When one has seen the Murillo's, he has seen something that makes him better and purer; that has given him a higher ideal of life, and has made him a richer and a nobler man. I do not wonder Spain is proud of her Murillo, and that she guards his works with jealous care.

From Madrid we took a short trip to Toledo, that quaint old Moorish place where more of ruin and desolation is seen and felt than in any other Spanish town. The houses are all so plain, and are built so closely together, the streets being in some places so narrow that, standing with arms outstretched, I could touch the buildings on either side. There were more beggars here than we had seen before. The tiniest children held out their hands for money. One little fellow particularly interested us, but we none of us gave him any money. For a few minutes he disappeared, but as we turned a corner we saw the young fellow limping towards us on one leg. He had so suddenly fastened the other up so that it appeared to have been cut off. We laughed at the scheme, so he resolved to drag it along, and the next time we saw him he had but one arm. By this time we concluded he at least deserved a penny for his trouble, and so we got rid of him.

Returning to Madrid where we found our landlady awaiting us, we spent one more night there and then left for Cordova. The pleasantest memory of our stay in the capital is the memory of this landlady, who took us literally into her arms, and whom we shall always remember as the loveliest woman we met in Spain. Should you ever go to Madrid, visit Sighiora Carmona, No. 27, Calle Mayor. She can not talk a word of English, but she will make you feel so much at home that you will never forget her or her kindly hospitality.

Cordova is another old Moorish town, principally of interest on account of the Mosque which is the most unique piece of architecture left by the Moors. Inside the Mosque there are 800 columns, and it at once impresses the observer as a vast forest of marble trunks. This was the mecca of the Moors, a place of refuge in time of trouble, and a shelter for the weary and oppressed.

From Cordova we next wended our way to fair Seville, so famed in poetry and in song—to Seville, the home of Murillo, where he worked and where he died. We were not disappointed, for although it is not vastly different from Toledo or Cordova, yet it possesses a charm peculiarly its own. The American consul very kindly showed us around, taking us to the places of interest, among which are the cathedral, the museum, the Alcazar and the House of Pilate. The cathedral contains the famous pictures, St. Anthony of Padua by Murillo, that of which was cut out and sent to New York, but was afterward restored to its place.

The museum contains the picture St. Thomas, which Murillo himself considered his masterpiece. There is also here the picture by Murillo's slave, about which the very pretty poem is written.

But we were all anxious to hasten our journey, for the weather was exceedingly warm, and so without stopping we went on to Granada and the Alhambra. Of course you have read all about the Alhambra. You have seen it over and over again in your day dreams, or you have seen it through the eyes of some one who has been there, or perchance you may have been there yourself and have realized the dream of your youth.

If you have been there you know what came to me as I went through the great gate leading into the grounds of the palace. It was evening, and the moonlight, as it cast its shadows through the forest of trees, made me think I was on enchanted ground. I had dreamed of the Alhambra, but I had not dreamed of such witchery as this. Not a person spoke, and we drove on in silence, reaching in a short time the hotel where we were to spend our time. The hotel is built just under an old ruined wall, and is near part of the garden belonging to the old palace. We secured a guide next day, the nephew of the guide who showed our own Irving over the place, and we started forth to view the Alhambra. But what can I tell you of the garden so full of charming memories, of the towers with their enchanting fairy tales, of the palace with the traces of great grandeur, of the hall where Isabella gave her jewels to Columbus, of the ponds and the lovely stucco work—what can I tell you of these but what you have read over and over again? We had our pictures taken in the Court of the Lions, and poor pictures they are, too, but what of that?

In the afternoon of the same day we visited the Gypsy quarter of Granada, where we saw the Queen of the Gypsies dance. While we stayed for the few days, we visited every part of the Alhambra grounds. We saw the views by daylight, and by moonlight, and those views are pictures in my mind which I never shall forget. After leaving Granada we came through the southern part of Spain, our object being to reach Switzerland as quickly as possible. We found the country very delightful as we passed through it, very much as I might some parts of California are. We stopped only at Valencia and Barcelona, then on to Lyons, thence to Geneva.

As I look back over our hurried trip through this not-much-visited country, I feel glad to have been there, glad to have become acquainted with the Spanish and his home, and yet not quite sorry that the journey is over. The Spanish girls are kept so closely at home that I do not wonder these people stared at a crowd of American girls who dared travel through a strange country as we did. I was surprised, too, to find how very far behind the rest of the world these people are. The farmers, for instance, have no machines for their work, such as we are accustomed to in America, but the grain is cut with the sickle, while the binders follow after. The wheat is pounded out on great threshing floors, and, indeed, everything seemed to us so ancient that it was truly amazing.

The railroads, too, in Southern Spain were not things of pleasure to the traveler. Everything is so slow that it tries one's patience most severely. One night about midnight we were stopped and ordered by the guards to get our baggage and get out. We knew not what had happened, and we were as dark as pitch, and we could only follow the crowd. In the midst of the excitement a spark from a torch set my dress on fire, but that was soon put out, and we hurried on to another train which was waiting about half a mile away. After a five hours' delay we started, and it was not until next day we learned that our engine had given out. Thus the change and delay.

But now we are out of the heat and dust and decay of Spain, and as I sit here at the foot of Mt. Blanc, where the air is cool and delightful, the scenery such as can be found nowhere else in Europe, I feel very glad to have come back to the Alhambra, to Malaga, to Gibraltar, but never again into Central Spain.

But I fear I have already tired you with my long letter. Pardon me—I am ready to relieve you by stopping right here. Very truly yours,

S. E. WALLACE.

Found Elsewhere Than San Xavier—His Life When Independent.

Many people, particularly Tucson people, suppose the bulk of the Papago population to be upon the San Xavier reservation under the kind care and protection of Uncle Sam's wing, where they are given the most fertile of land, and work it, with the best market in the world adjacent; where they are guarded from all intrusion of the white man, who is arrested for pasturing stock on the reservation range, is hedged in in his dealings with the native American by orders from the agent in charge, where all is quiet and peaceful, the Indian's elysium, say the citizens.

The supposition is erroneous. The Papagos from outside the fold outnumber many to one those of the reservation, and are scattered on the flats about the southern part of the county, in villages from Quijotoa to Mexico. These are the more warlike of the tribe, and are under no government, but live on their own resources. Many of these resources are peculiarly their own, others a rude imitation of the white man's. They hunt, and in their own way capture many a fine buck or antelope or mountain lion; they live off their little gardens, rudely cultivated and irrigated; raise cattle—not their own always; and in a large village of the tribe near Quijotoa, they wash for gold in the creek beds in the rainy season.

In this region they also show a sturdy independence, which, while something to be admired, is rather too mixed with a disposition to bully over the white man. They claim there are the great flats beyond the village, and are said to allow no white man to cross it. The white man's cattle he permits to feed there, but many and many an Indian brand adorns calves following dams with the brands of the more civilized ranches. In fact the Papago is a "heap big" thief. He sometimes finds employment about the mines at the Quijotoa, though miners speak of them as generally lazy.

Women Traveling Alone.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Never in twenty-five years' experience have I ever seen so many women traveling alone as there are this summer. Almost half the passengers in the sleeping-cars of my last three trips were women unattended by escort. They were all going off somewhere to spend their vacations, and were as independent as you please. Most of the women carry those infernal Kodak cameras, and were too much occupied taking snap shots out of the car windows and of the other persons in the car to care for the men. I have noticed for the past three or four years that women are getting to be more independent and are traveling about alone as freely as drummers. They are lots of trouble, though, most of these women. They want too much for their money, and are too inquisitive to suit me. The old hands at traveling are a little less exacting, and I know two or three ladies who are as easy to get along with as a man. They go all over the country alone, and you are just as likely to run across them all in the same town in California as alone in the cars. They do not know each other and do not appear to want to know any new acquaintances. One of these is a Boston woman of means. She takes in every big show in the country, from the "Native Day" in California to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans and the charity ball in New York. She knows as much about the different roads and hotels in the country as any man I ever met, and seems to enjoy life in her own peculiar way. I always see her at least four times a year, sometimes more.

CONVICT PHOTOGRAPHS.

The Latest Effort to Abolish the Rogu's Gallery.
(Oakland Times.)

In determining to do away with the system of photographing convicts, the State's prison authorities do not appear to have reached the root of what is unquestionably a great evil. There is no doubt of the fact that the preservation of the photographs of convicts is often of the utmost help in fixing the guilt of men accused of offenses against the law, and equally the mere fact of the State possessing his photograph in its official collection is of itself no bar to a discharged convict leading an upright life after his release from prison if he sees fit to do so. The whole trouble lies with the police system—a system that, as at present conducted in every large city in the land, is vastly more provocative than preventive of crime. A man commits a crime, say for the first time, and upon an impulse for the moment irresistible, and is sent to prison. At once he is photographed, and by a system of exchange his picture comes, within a few days, into the possession of every Jew, Crow detective and police officer, public and private, in the United States. The day of his release from prison is noted, and so soon as he is at liberty he is warned that the police are upon his track and that he had better be mindful of his actions. Should a crime be committed at that particular time, the news goes out that such an one is out of prison, and that it is probably his work. That is enough for your average "fly cop." If he does not fasten the guilt upon the poor devil it will not be because of any high regard the officer has for the truth upon the witness stand. Again, let the ex-convict seek work as an honest man, and the man asked to employ him is at once supplied by the police authorities with his record and warned what may be expected from hiring a jail bird. The jail bird, consequently, is thrown back upon his own resources, finds every man's hand against him, and almost literally in self-defense, raises his hand against every man. He goes to war with society and is crushed, of course, being the lesser force. No, gentlemen, it is not the system of photographing criminals that is at fault. That system may be, and upon occasion has been very useful. You must begin at the fountain-head, and reform the police. Then, perhaps, there will be some chance for the reformation of other men not wholly bad.

OSTRICHES AS SCAVENGERS.

A Novel Way of Utilizing the Hungry Birds.

A Fresno exchange has an original idea, which is embodied in the following, which is clipped bodily from the Examiner:

We notice in the Los Angeles papers that a gentleman from that city offers several dozen ostriches for sale. These birds are perfect street cleaners. They wipe off the rubbish from the streets as effectively as would a fire. They take everything before them.

Those Los Angeles ostriches may be procured at a small price, and there would be no expense in maintaining them. Two men can handle a herd of thirty without any difficulty. The ostrich has most perfect digestive apparatus of anything that breathes. Its instincts do not suffice to prevent it from swallowing very unsuitable things. Old shoes, pieces of umbrellas, soda water bottles and discarded clothing have been devoured by them with no fatal results. The ostrich is very patient of thirst. It often supplies the want of water by eating empty oyster cans, gunny sacks, pieces of crates, old baskets and cork hats. In the absence of these articles it eats anything that comes within its reach. The goat is not in it.

The ostrich is easily managed while using him as a street sweeper. Take a drove of say two dozen, drive them slowly up one alley and down another and there would be nothing inflammable left behind them. The herd of ostriches should be led by the street superintendent with the police as aids. The work could best be accomplished at night after the officers and the birds had performed their daily duties.

If the property-owners fail to do their duty and the expense of cleaning back yards and alleys is to devolve upon the city, then nothing could be cheaper and more economical than to purchase a drove of ostriches. It would not be amiss to consider this subject at the next meeting of the trustees.

Why Picnics are so Called.

Everybody knows what a picnic is, but most folks would find it hard to say how it got that name, and yet it is simple enough when you come to learn it. When a picnic was being arranged for, the custom originally was that those who intended to be present should supply the eatables and drinkables. A list of those necessities having been drawn up it was passed round and each person picked out the article of food that he or she was willing to furnish, and the name of the article was nicked, or ticked off the list. The open-air entertainment thus became known as a "pick and nick."

The custom is said to date from 1802, so that the picnic is wholly an institution of the last century. The name is said to have strongly resembled what is now called a "surprise party."

TARIFF PICTURES.

(New York Press.)

The spool cotton bought for the Indian Bureau in 1890 cost 42 cents a dozen. Since then the price of spool cotton has gone down in spite of that terrible McKinley bill, and this year the Indian Bureau got its spool cotton for 31.5 cents a dozen. That's because we grow cotton ourselves and cotton is cheaper, but isn't it a good example of the advantage of having a home supply of an article independent of imports and duties?

WHAT IS IT?

A Town Frightened by the Antics of a Strange Animal.
KANSAS CITY, Aug. 28.—[Correspondence.] The people of Argentine, Kan., the little smelter city across the Kaw River from this city, are very much exercised over a mysterious monster which has spread terror among the women and children of the silver city. Just what it is no one has yet been able to decide, and while the men of the town were at first disposed to make light of the fears of the weaker members of their families, they now speak with respect of the "thing" which has not only been heard, but seen by certain of their number who were bold enough to watch for its coming after night.

For some months past wakeful people in that town have heard a most mysterious and terrifying noise, apparently emanating from a large pond which lies in the town. The noise is described as being between the roar of a freight train and the howling of a bull. When it was first heard it was supposed to be a combination of train and bull, but it was frequently heard afterwards and always together, and as no freight train passed to continue the noise the women began to speculate as to the probable source of the terrible sound. Those who lived near the pond asserted that the noise came from the water or the bank of the pond. It invariably came about the same hour every night, and at last became so generally talked about that it became a constant source of conversation among the women. Some of them declared that they heard the howl and then there would be an awful "sloshing" in the water, as if some large animal was enjoying a bath. It was also noticed that chickens, ducks and geese disappeared with greater frequency than the chicken-stealing portion of the community could account for. The disappearance being more frequent in the daytime than in the night, they were laid to the doors of the mysterious animal, and at last, so great became the excitement, certain of the men determined to watch for the monster. The noise was heard about 12 o'clock every night, and one night last week four men armed themselves and waited for the moon to rise, when they took their way to the edge of the pond.

Just what happened at the pond that night no one will ever know. All that is known is that these four men came rushing away from that little body of water so badly scared that they could give no coherent account of what they saw. They all agreed on one thing, however. They had seen something that placed them in such deadly fear that they waited not on the order of their going, but went at once. One declared that an animal as big as a horse came up out of the water and gave a bellow that sounded like a thunderclap, and made directly toward them. This was enough for him, and he went home. Another says the beast looked like a big snake, only it had legs and came at them with wide-open jaws, roaring like a train of heavily loaded cars, and he could not tell whether it was a serpent or an animal. The third man saw nothing. He was looking the other way when the awful sound came, and as he saw his companions running he did not take time to look back. The fourth man has little to say. He admits that he was so badly scared that he cannot tell what it was that came out of the water. He had never seen the like before. It had a long body with low legs and a head like an immense dog. It had two big tusks which hung down from its mouth, and when it roared he did not look any further, but went home as fast as he could travel. Since then no one has cared to watch for the monster, and the varying descriptions given by those who saw it, lead the people to have many theories. The most generally accepted idea is that it is one of the lions which escaped from a car about two years ago while being transported from San Francisco to New York. At that time the sea lion was said to have become mad from the heat and gave the express messenger a terrible fright in the car, and afterwards escaped near where this monster is said to be seen.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT?

How a City of Mexico Reporter was Imposed Upon.
[Anglo-American.]

A certain German professor of note who had just arrived in this city from Germany via the United States came near slaying a reporter of the Universal newspaper because of the latter's unfamiliarity with the German tongue. The professor was dressed in a flashy suit of clothes, red necktie and an immense straw sombrero which looked like a parasol. The hat was the principal figure in the Hotel Turbide yesterday, where the distinguished foreigner is stopping. While he was strolling about about Poulat asked him for an interview. The professor talks very little Spanish and could not understand the interviewer. The two men stood jabbering away at one another and each thought the other crazy. Presently the reporter hurried over to a German-American from Milwaukee standing near the register, and asked him for a sentence in German which was a translation of "I am a reporter for a newspaper." The traveling man wrote out a sentence and the reporter returned to the professor. Looking on his paper he shouted: "Wo haben sie das bekommen?" "Que dice V?" exclaimed the foreigner. "I said," and the reporter now yelled, "Wo haben sie das bekommen?" He didn't say any more. The Professor grabbed him and was about to throw the young man across the patio when the servants separated them and through a German explained the cause of the trouble. When the interviewer thought he was telling the professor his object in addressing him he was really asking, "Where did you get that hat?"

At the birth of a child in lower Brittany the women take it in charge, wash it, crack its joints and rub its head with oil to soften the cranium bone. It is then strapped in tight bundle and its lips are anointed with brandy to make it a full blown.

The Turkish mother loads her child with amulets as soon as it is born, and a small bit of mud, well steeped in hot water, prepared by previous charms, is stuck on its forehead.

Our subscriptions to the Delineator amount to 735 copies per month and the book-stores of the city sell fully one-half as many more. We sell over 1500 copies of the Metropolitan Book of Fashions each year and distribute free 4000 Fashion Sheets each month and 1000 small catalogues each year. When we took the agency for E. Butterick & Co.'s Reliable Patterns the subscription to the Delineator amounted to less than 10 each month, and only 5 copies of the Metropolitan were taken each year. ## LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Plant Food.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Under this head in last Sunday's issue it was pointed out what were purchasable fertilizers and how to buy them. It was shown that the only expensive elements that a fertilizer can contain are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash.

In this second article it is designed to show how a purchaser may protect himself against a fraudulent or ignorant dealer—simply insist upon a guaranteed analysis or refuse to purchase. Do you say that you want some plant food and that you cannot find any complete fertilizer in Southern California with a guaranteed analysis? Are my trees to starve? By no means. Buy what you need for your present emergencies. Then call together the people who are most interested in this subject, and by concerted action do the very best thing that can be done—petition the Legislature to pass an act compelling every manufacturer and dealer to stencil every bag with an analysis of the percentage of plant food contained therein.

See what the little State of New Jersey (only about the size of Los Angeles county,) has passed:

"AN ACT TO REGULATE THE MANUFACTURE AND SALE OF FERTILIZERS."

"1. That every commercial fertilizer which shall be offered for sale in this State shall be accompanied by an analysis, stating the percentage therein of ammonia, or its equivalent in nitrogen; of potash in any form or combination soluble in distilled water; and of phosphoric acid, the proportion of phosphoric acid soluble in distilled water; that portion soluble in neutral solution of citrate of ammonia at a temperature not exceeding one hundred degrees Fahrenheit; and that portion of phosphoric acid not soluble in either of the above named fluids, shall be determined separately; and the source from which the phosphoric acid is obtained shall be stated; a legible statement of such analysis shall accompany all packages or lots of over 100 pounds sold, offered or exposed for sale."

"6. That any person selling, offering or exposing for sale any commercial fertilizer without the analysis required by the first section of this act, or the act to which this act is supplementary, or with an analysis stating that said fertilizer contains a larger percentage of any one or more of the constituents mentioned in said section than is contained therein, shall forfeit $50 for the first offense, and $100 for each subsequent offense; provided further, that the provisions of this section, or the act to which this act is a supplement, shall not apply to any manure, sold at a price not exceeding one-half cent per pound, nor to any imported guano." [Laws of New Jersey, 1874, p. 90.]

Many of the Eastern States have passed similar laws. Why should California not protect its tillers of the soil as well as the States of the East? But California has not looked after the interest of the farmer and grower in this respect, and as half a loaf is better than none, let the growers combine and demand of the manufacturers and dealers analyses of their goods offered for sale.

The writer remembers an incident of his college life. A professor, who was unpopular, had unjustly denounced a student before the faculty. The boys, bent on revenge, got up what was supposed to be a first-class oration or homing party. Well armed with horse-dribbles, tin horns, pans and drums, and every conceivable device for making night hideous, some two hundred students marched to the professor's house, on the outskirts of the town. The hour was after midnight. Silence prevailed until word was given for the music (?) to begin, and then such music! In about three minutes the professor appeared at the window, gun in hand. "If my country will not protect me I'll protect myself." Bang! Bang! And death-like silence prevailed. Next day not a student of all that throng could be found, and had heard of that catbath, with no saying of having gone on it.

So let the consumers of fertilizers say, "If our State will not protect us we will protect ourselves by demanding guaranteed analyses of the fertilizers we buy."

"Water! Water! and not a Drop to Drink."
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Will you allow me a small space in your columns—enough to record an unqualified approval of the Council's special committee to investigate our water system.

Seven or eight years ago you published an article for me in which I attempted to show that the city should own its water system, and it would be only a question of time when it would be compelled to do so, and if acquired at that time thousands of dollars would be saved to the taxpayers.

Each succeeding year this has become more and more apparent, until to that portion known as the West Side it has become a matter of life or death. It is not the purpose of the writer to offer proof to substantiate this fact, but to, if possible, add a grain of strength to the already complete report.

It would seem that every taxpayer would view it in this light. The time has come to move in this matter before our hands and feet become tied.

Too long already we have been patient sufferers, hoping against hope—asking, yes, begging for what was our right to demand.

It is idle to suppose these dwellers on the hills have no backing but what their homes represent. Many have large interests in the business portion of the city, and own the blocks they occupy, and when combined to demand their rights, they will only have to step up and take them.

These are no idle boasts, but facts that are well worth considering. Strike when the iron is hot, or rather when the necessity stares us in the face. We pay a water-closet tax and get no water for it. We pay a water tax for a horse and take him down to drink. We pay a lawn tax and sit up nights to get water for it.

A SUFFERER.

Strong Language About Bugs.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] In regard to the tree and bug controversy I wish to make a suggestion of how to solve it and avoid so much nursing and temporizing. If a hospital should be established at the beach to receive from foreign vessels smallpox, yellow fever and cholera patients for treatment at county expense, think you the public would submit? No! neither should any man be allowed to load trees infested with pests, jeopardizing our greatest interest. I believe in going to the root of the matter by a short cut. Life is too short, and progressive, and the act too much of an outrage. When the cupid of men lead them to ship trees here known to be infested, I would declare a new gospel on the subject. That grand old man Governor of New York, John A. Dix, said: "If any man pulls down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." That proclamation thrilled the North like an electric shock, and was worth more to our army than ten thousand men. I would have proclaimed: If any man ships into this State any trees infested with any kind of pests, burn them on the spot, and pay him for them at the end of the law! And further, if he shipped them here knowing them to be infested I would put him behind the bars. It is too serious a subject for argument.

GROWING PINEAPPLES.
Experience of a Florida Grower—What to Do and Avoid.

MELBOURNE (Fla.), Aug. 19.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I see in your issue of the 2d inst., some remarks concerning pineapple culture as carried on by one of your prominent nurserymen. I think there are one or two points touched upon which I can explain to your readers, and as the business is acknowledged to be only "in the experimental stage," perhaps the suggestions might prove of value. The reason why plants are planted so close as 22 to 24 inches—even in some cases 18—with us, is because after a field has grown several crops, the suckers which produce the fruit, do not have direct root hold in the ground, coming out each year higher and higher upon the old plant. Unless supported in some way the weight of the apple bends them down and breaks them off at their junction with the main plant, and the fruit having one side directly exposed to the vertical rays of the sun, becomes scorched and ruined. We find that by planting closely the plants support each other and this danger is obviated. With Spanish pine, 22 or 24 inches is as much space as it is safe to allow. Porto Rico, which are much larger plants may have 30 to 36. White Antiques 25 to 28 and so on. The stronger the soil the larger the plant and hence this variation allowed in the same variety. I think that after the second crop Mr. Morrison will be obliged to stake up most of his apples.

Again deep culture in winter is spoken of. The pineapple with us is a surface feeder, and we have found deep culture absolutely disastrous. Frequent stirring of the soil an inch or so in depth is all we allow, and if the soil is naturally loose that should be sufficient. It is needless to say that all imaginable methods have been tried and carried to every extreme, as we have been growing pines as a field-crop in this State for fifteen years. We have abandoned wide planting and compensated for reduced soil area by heavy applications of nitrogenous fertilizers. The industry here is assuming considerable proportions. This year 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 plants will be set in this country, and probably 1,000,000 in the next county south, while land has been prepared for half as many more, which cannot be planted this season for want of plants.

Respectfully,
JOHN B. BEACH.

Hope Revived.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] It looks now as if we would yet get that cheap water power down the Salton Lake, for we have the able report of the Southern Pacific Railroad's engineers that the water in New River is actually running out of the Salton Lake into the gulf on an up-grade of 360 feet.

While this report revives our hopes of getting a cheap water power, it knocks out all hopes of converting it to the use of manufacturing moonshine; it looks as if ere long that that article would be a drug on the market.

But then it serves to establish a principle that water will run up hill, which will serve wonderfully to help out our efficient Citizens' Water Company that has been so long trying to supply the hill denizens with water on that principle.

MANUFACTURER.
P. S. I hope our city fathers will not take too much stock in this new departure, but will hear to the old law of gravitation and get a reservoir high enough, so we will not have to use a force-pump to get the water into our first story.

Mr. B. N. Smith, one of Ventura county's most successful horticulturists, states that he considers a fifteen-year-old English walnut tree, in good health, worth about $400, and that he can make a reasonable percentage upon that amount from many trees in his orchard.—Fruit Grower.

IN MEMORY OF LOWELL.

Exercises of a most interesting character were held yesterday evening in the First Congregational Church in memory of the late James Russell Lowell. The audience was naturally large. A quartette composed of Mrs. E. R. Shrader of Los Angeles, Miss Katie Wash, Prof. J. D. Graham and Ed. Hahn rendered "Rest, weary one, rest," and another selection during the evening, and Mrs. Shrader sang a solo written especially for the occasion. Addresses were delivered by Rev. D. D. Hill, Prof. Will S. Monroe and Prof. E. R. Shrader of Los Angeles. Mr. Shrader confined his remarks to the poetical side of Lowell. He gave a careful analysis and criticism of the Biglow papers, and referred to the influence they exerted in the Mexican and civil wars. The author's greatest ode read at Harvard University was also reviewed, together with others of his most noted productions.

Rev. Mr. Hill discussed Lowell in his capacity as critic. His remarks were general and comprehensive, and contained much information relative to the author's critical works.

Mr. Monroe discussed Lowell's public life in his several capacities as lawyer, editor, teacher and diplomat. The speaker reviewed briefly Lowell's legal career in Boston, gave a short account of his editorial connection with the Atlantic Monthly and the North American Review, referred to his professorship at Harvard University, and briefly touched upon his diplomatic career at Madrid and at the Court of St. James.

WE MAY BE COMFORTABLE YET.

The costumes which many Pasadena of the male persuasion have adopted this summer raise the speculation whether a movement for a national summer dress for men is not one of the possibilities of the future. The advent of the negligee shirt is at the head of the movement, which may perhaps go away with the time-honored custom of endeavoring to adopt the costume of the European to the climate of the sub-tropics.

A writer of our acquaintance nobly rises to the occasion thus:

"Even when relieved by the flannel shirt, we are still improperly clad for such temperatures as those we suffer under. We irritate the weary and fevered pulses of the wrists with cuffs and bind about the neck with collars, boiling the blood in the two great arteries of the latter until suffering human nature is driven to the absurdly conceived remedy of thrusting a handkerchief between the suffering part and its tormentor, a proceeding which, of course, only makes matters worse. The ideal costume for these days would be of silk, with wide trousers and a wide-throated, short-sleeved smock. Of course a business man who should appear today or tomorrow such a rig would be stared at for a Parsee or a Chinese mandarin. Still, the business man who five years ago had exhibited himself in flannels and a shirt would have seemed just as great a guy. The world moves, and we may be comfortable yet."

REAL ESTATE ACTIVE.

H. C. Allen, a well-known capitalist, has purchased through W. R. Staats twenty acres of land belonging to Mrs. Stoneham at the south end of Moline avenue adjoining Mr. Phillips' place, and commanding an extended view of the valley. Mr. Allen is at present visiting friends at Grafton, Ill. Upon his return he will build a handsome residence on his purchase and spend thousands of dollars in other improvements. Several other sales have been effected by Mr. Staats recently, which indicates continued activity in the real-estate market.

SAN BERNARDINO CO.

Bloody Fight between Half-breed Indians.

ONE MAN KILLED, ONE WOUNDED.

A Decision in the Lasher Case to be Handed Down Today—Street Opening and the Santa Fe.

Yesterday morning the camp of half-breed Indians near Old San Bernardino was the scene of a bloody scrimmage, which has already resulted in the death of one of the participants, and which will in all probability close the career of another.

Just what the cause of the row was no one seems to know. The full facts and details will not come out before the coroner's inquest, which is to be held this morning at 10 o'clock on the body of the dead Indian.

After the two redskins had been stabbed one of them started off. He went to an adjoining house and borrowed a revolver. The next seen of him his body was found on the Southern Pacific track, on the Curtis place, in old San Bernardino.

Whether or not the Indian found dead on the track was run over by the train or killed by other Indians before his body was placed on the track is not yet known. As two of the Indians who have been in the camp are missing, it is thought by some that they followed up the one on the track and killed him. The other theory is that the dead Indian started to leave the country and endeavored to board a train while it was in motion, with fatal results.

The other Indian who was stabbed received the blade of a knife in his back. He is in a precarious condition at present.

No arrests have been made by the Sheriff at present and none will be until after the coroner's inquest, when the full developments in the case will come out.

THE ANTICIPATED DECISION.

Today a decision is to be handed down in the case against Trustees H. G. Leher, and for a time at least, the municipal tangle will probably be at rest. In the meantime both of the suspended trustees will hold, pending a decision of the Supreme Court on appeal. During the absence of President Kennison the board will have to have a presiding officer. It is understood that one is to be elected on Tuesday evening, at which time the board will hold its regular meeting. "The solid three" have been broken, and the board now stands two to two. What effect this tie vote will have upon the city business is not now known. It is to be hoped that it will not result in a "tie up" of the board. If this is the case of course a "tie up" of all city business and improvements will follow. This would prove disastrous to the city and its best interests.

RESULTS TO BE LOOKED TO.

There is now on foot a movement, which, if carried out, is liable to result in serious detriment to the city of San Bernardino. It is contemplated to open and widen Fourth street and to extend the same. If this is done it takes the street right through the Santa Fe railroad yards and requires the removal of certain shops and buildings and virtually destroys the utility of the yard. The Santa Fe, of course, will resist the movement. The officers have no desire to remove their shops from San Bernardino, but if their property is taken from them, as is now contemplated, they will be compelled to place their various institutions elsewhere, much as they desire not to do so. The question of opening the street will come up some day, and it is to be hoped that the trustees, Tuesday evening.

A FINE COUNTRY.

In the Perris country, recently opened up with plenty of water from the Bear Valley dam, there are 120,000 acres divided among the several districts as follows:

Alexandria irrigation district.....20,000

Perris irrigation district.....22,000

Mountain Glen.....5,000

Coyote Pass.....5,000

Tuscaloosa irrigation district.....5,000

Level area of San Jacinto Nuevo grant.....28,000

Monterey Valley.....30,000

Two irrigation districts have already been organized to cover this territory. It is expected that in time there will be as many developed territory as Riverside now possesses.

BRIEFS.

Sam Livingstone of Livingstone & Co. will be back from his European tour presently. He has already arrived in New York city.

At Rialto they are getting $12 per ton for wine grapes.

The top of Rubidoux Mountain has been designated as a park site for Riverside.

What is agitating Riverside people very much at present is the paving question. Property-owners seen to be generally favoring paving as soon as it is possible to commence the improvement.

A citizen of South Riverside has numerous orange groves and an olive orchard. A flume of vitrified tile fluming is used to water all of the various trees and it is said to be doing finely for the purpose for which it was constructed.

The Porphyry Paving Company is taking a large quantity of rock out at South Riverside by means of heavy blasts.

It is now claimed that the change of management which has been made in the Temescal tin mines will in no way injure or set back the development of this great source of natural wealth. The future will demonstrate how true this is. Temescal tin is very pure and it is easily worked and purified.

SAN BERNARDINO PERSONALS.

CLEARWATER.

CLEARWATER, Aug. 27.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The Terminal Railroad is making rapid progress. A large grading camp is located on the San Gabriel River, near the county farm, and have completed the grade between that point and the city. There is remaining only about three-quarters of a mile to close the un-lished gap through the lands of Daniel Lane. Another gang of graders are working night and day on the extensive cut through Corcoran Hill. All of which will probably be completed by the end of the present week, when the entire road will be ready for the rails from the ocean to the city, and it is thought trains will be running by October 1.

A good force of men and teams are now pushing work on the San Gabriel River improvement. A straight channel has been defined from the county farm, southward, and is being worked out clear, while the weak spots in the banks are being strengthened by means of levees built of earth, growing willows and barbed wire, all of which is hoped will confine the river to its channel and prevent any damaging overflows. Rivera district is at work with the same object in view.

H. P. Epperson and family have returned from Long Beach where they have been for several weeks.

Dr. J. H. Martin and family have removed to Los Angeles. The Doctor having sold his Clearwater property to good advantage. L. J. Bliss of Los Angeles is the purchaser, and has removed here with his family.

Clearwater's handsome school building opened with a good attendance of pupils last week. Prof. J. I. Hill has been retained as teacher.

We did not name the price in our former article that it would be offered at, preferring to wait until plans of the tract had been shown. We are now prepared to show you how the tract looks as subdivided and the price it can be bought for. It runs up to all parts of the property are equally light and equally desirable. If you think you may buy some of it it suits you, to such we can say, if you consult your own interests you will invest at once, because at the prices offered it will sell rapidly.

Although this tract is put upon the market in the dulllest month in the year when people are trying to avoid taking upon themselves new responsibilities, it is commanding the attention of the close buyers in the country. Buyers of this tract will be located in one of the best settled neighborhoods of the county. There are close to this tract and joining it Raymond, the two elegant mansions and grounds of J. A. Graves and Mr. Newberry, and many others in the immediate vicinity. The tract needs no expense laid out on it to prepare it for immediate use. The water which supplies this tract comes from bubbling springs on the tract. The water is cold and pure and who piped to each lot in the best steel pipes will be delivered free from all contaminants.

The topography of this tract is such as renders it peculiarly adapted for the growth of the choicest fruits. It is above the frost belt and is sheltered on the sides exposed to the prevailing winds, thereby rendering safe the culture of all kinds of fruits. It is free from washes or any liability to washes in the future. Although every acre offered for sale can be irrigated, there are bordering on the eastern and western boundary lines of this tract natural depressions that conduct off all surplus storm waters without damage to the tract. This is the only tract in this section where a person can build an ideal home with cool swimming, water and location so happily combined—where one can keep a cow and horse if desired, and grow alfalfa for them with plenty of water to insure the best results. The verdict of all parties on their first visit to the tract is that it looks better than they expected.

KITTY MOLLOY.

The body of the Suicide Recovered in San Francisco Bay.

The body of Kitty Molloy, the young woman who committed suicide on the evening of the 16th inst., was recovered from the bay yesterday, says the San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday. It was found near Mission Rock. The body was in such an advanced state of decomposition that the features were unrecognizable, and it was only by means of the dress, bracelet and a bracelet that identification was rendered possible.

A card bearing the name of "J. A. Walden" was found in the pocket of the dress. The unfortunate girl was last seen alive by Joseph Joseph, a hackman, who drove her from the Hillside House on Sixth street to the ferry landing on the evening of the 16th inst.

The girl had been rooming at the Hillside House until two weeks prior to her death, when she removed to 404 Grove street. Where she boarded she claimed that she lodged with Mrs. Frankie Arthur at 360 Brannan street. On the Thursday before her death she exhibited a wound in her left arm which she said had been inflicted by a bullet, but it has since been claimed that she had attempted suicide by stabbing herself with a pair of scissors. Although she had a very disfigured face she declined to Mrs. Rose Bodine of 104 Grove street several days prior to her suicide that she was going to reform. She even went so far as to intimate that she was going to enter a convent. As evidence of her religious inclinations a rosary was found about her wrist when the body was recovered yesterday.

The girl's right name was Kitty Kelly, and she had a half-brother who is now living in this city. Her parents live in Los Angeles. She was known to have a lover, but his name could not be ascertained from the former associates of the dead girl. It is supposed that it was on account of his desertion that the girl committed suicide, and it is hinted that he is the one who inflicted the wound on her arm, which resulted from a quarrel anticipating the separation.

The Notorious Nannie Calvert.

The notorious Nannie Calvert was the cause of a lively "scrap" at the Santa Monica depot just before the 6 o'clock train left last evening, two of her admirers engaging in a rough-and-tumble fight on account of her having shown a preference for one over the other. The women attempted to assist her escort by poking his assailant with her parasol, but the latter snatched it from her and promptly broke it over the other man's head. The fighters were separated by bystanders, but while en route to town resumed hostilities on the cars, but quieted down when threatened with arrest by Constable Clements.

THE RAILROADS.

The Gauge of the South Pacific Coast Line.

A RAILROAD EMPLOYEES' CLUB

Summer Sojourners Homeward Bound—What Mr. Fair Says about the Coast Road—General and Local.

Reports have gone abroad of late that James G. Fair had become dissatisfied with the way in which the Southern Pacific Company was managing the South Pacific Coast narrow-gauge road, and that he was about to assume control of the line again. When Vice-President Leland Stanford of the Southern Pacific was asked by a Chronicle reporter if his company was ready to turn over the road to Mr. Fair, he said it had no such intention.

There is only one way Mr. Fair can get control of the road," said Mr. Stanford, "and that is to buy it. He is a large holder of the road, but we are now running it, and will continue to do so. The only change we are likely to make is a change of gauge from narrow to standard."

Mr. Stanford spoke of the contemplated change were one that would soon be made, though he did not say a great deal on the subject. He thought that as the South Pacific Coast is the only narrow-gauge line under the control of the company, it would be better to have all the track of a standard gauge, so as to facilitate the handling of cars for both passenger and freight traffic.

Mr. Fair, when seen on the subject, expressed himself as opposed to the contemplated change of gauge.

"It will not cost a great deal to change the line into a standard-gauge," said he, "but what would the company gain by it? The engines I bought for the road are of the best manufacture, and it has been proved that they are as good a service as any of the others of the Southern Pacific Company. The line could not be made to pay as a standard-gauge, though it pays well enough as a narrow-gauge road. I have made several suggestions to the management regarding certain matters connected with the road, but I have not expressed any dissatisfaction with the way things have been running, and I do not intend to try to regain control of it."

Trains from Long Beach yesterday were well loaded with passengers and baggage, the summer sojourners being homeward bound. The season is already on the wane at most seaside resorts, not because the season is over, but because September 1 approaches, and the almanac marks that date as a change of season.

The Southern Pacific Company will soon find it necessary to replace the Webster street drawbridge of the narrow-gauge in Oakland by a new structure, which will involve an expenditure of $250,000.

It has been decided to have a daily train service over the whole line of the new San Joaquin Valley road of the Southern Pacific Company, instead of the tri-weekly service for a portion of the line at first proposed.

General Manager Burnett, General Passenger Agent Wincup and General Counsel Gibbons of the Terminal were members of a party that went sailing from San Pedro yesterday with Commodore Hancock's boat.

Omaha railway employees have formed a club having for its objects certain important reforms. This is a branch of an association of railway employees which is being formed all over the western part of the United States. The objects of the organization are said to be the securing, by the casting of the votes for Federal officials favorable to railway men, laws opposed to capital oppression. The association originated in Minneapolis, where the seat of government is located for the present. Local clubs are being rapidly formed in various western States.

NEGRO COLONIZATION.

Senator Stanford Does Not Favor the Scheme.

The San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday says: Senator Leland Stanford has been accredited by the New York Herald with a desire to effect the amelioration of the negroes of the South by transporting large bodies of them to California. Other papers have also taken the matter up and given much space to it, one journal stating that Senator Stanford intended to bring 10,000 negroes here before winter.

But think just as much of the colored man as does any one in the State," said Senator Stanford to a Chronicle reporter yesterday, "but I certainly have not given the matter as much attention as I am reported to have done. The negro question is one in which I have interested myself to a certain extent, and it might be to the interest of the colored people to bring them here, as well as for us to receive them, for our State needs immigration. I do not, however, advocate the bringing of negroes here in large numbers. What colored people have here now I believe to be of the better class. They are industrious and as a rule are desirable citizens. But if we were to receive large accessions to our population from the lower ranks of negroes, such, for instance, as many of those in Mississippi—we would certainly become sick of our bargain."

"As for the negro as a worker I think he can be made to do very well, but the experiments of some of our large employers, notably Mr. Haggin, do not show that success by any means likely to follow the first attempt at colonizing them. I have never employed negroes to any great extent, though I have employed Chinese—fewer now, however, than formerly. The Chinese is a very good worker but he is a disturbing element of our population and should not be encouraged."

"I do not know what I should do in case the colonization of negroes were urged upon me, but I know that the negroes here, which is not very likely, I would aim to bring only the better classes."

Keep lemons in the house when possible, as they are sure to be in demand for more purposes than one, and are quite healthful, says the Florida Agriculturist. It is claimed that when a large lot of lemons is purchased, and there is fear of their not keeping till wanted for use, that if for use they are placed in a jar, covered with clear water, and the water changed each day, the lemons will keep as long as desired, and are as fresh when removed from the jar as when first purchased. There are few things as efficacious for breaking up a cold as hot lemonade taken before bedtime.
